Conference Overview

Integrated within the conference experience is exposure to Coastline’s beautiful Newport Beach campus.

Dr. Robert Gould will present the keynote lecture, “Teaching Students to Swim in a Sea of Data,” which will focus on why data literacy is so important and how to help students become data scientists.

Dr. Gould is the Vice-Chair of Undergraduate Studies and Director of Center for Teaching of Statistics at UCLA's Department of Statistics. He is the founder of DataFest competitions and the co-author of the textbook Introductory Statistics: Exploring the World Through Data. He also co-authored the Chars A. Dana Center document “Mathematics Foundations for Success in Introductory Statistics” which many community colleges are using to formulate the co-requisite component for Intro Stats, and co-led the Summit on Data Sciences at Two Year Colleges.
